In addition to using the filters and erasing tools in Photoshop, you can use Photoshop's drawing tools to create your own images for artistic or other purposes. ## Using Photoshop's Drawing Tools Photoshop's drawing tools offer an easy method to create your own images in digital format. The tools are similar to those used in paint programs, such as Corel Paint Shop Pro. When creating a new drawing layer, you may need to create a background layer (where you draw your image). You can create a new layer directly by selecting Layer > New from the Layers panel menu or by going to Layer | New or by pressing Alt+A. You can draw with the drawing tools or use a series of tools that create predefined and user-defined paths. In addition to the tools in the Tools panel, a separate panel, Paths, allows you to draw out various shapes of type.

Q: 2d cartesian coordinates projection in openlayers What is the proper projection for representing points in 2d cartesian coordinates in openlayers? I am working in QGIS 2.18.10. I am using tile zoom 1337 and print composer 1600 which includes a "projection projection" function. I have been using EPSG:2959 EPSG:3035, EPSG:4326 and EPSG:3857. The tiles are EPSG:900913 (Meters). I am only interested in 2d cartesian coordinates because I am going to evaluate the distance in meters between two points. A: In OpenLayers, the native coordinates are Cartesian by default. And EPSG:4326 is indeed a good choice. The Bioconductor Genetics Ontology (BGEO): a comprehensive and coordinated curation effort for the genetic basis of disease. High-throughput experimentation is leading to the flood of newly available biomedical data. A major driver of the adoption of the modern scientific method is to enable rigorous data integration. Systems biology strives to model, and then to simulate, complex biological phenomena at multiple levels of biological organization. The complexity of this model, however, poses a major challenge for experimental data integration. Many high-throughput methods, including Genomics, Proteomics, Transcriptomics and Metabolomics, collect data that are stored in disparate data repositories. Integration, therefore, requires the systematic identification, annotation and cross-analysis of the data types collected. Thus, obtaining access to a comprehensive and cohesive representation of the available data that can be modeled using computational simulation is highly desirable. This report presents a comprehensive and coordinated effort to create a relational, federated, biological database, the Bioconductor Genetics Ontology (BGEO), through a community-driven curation effort. The scope of data collected in this curation effort is broad, ranging from genetic diseases to biological interactions. The BGEO, while focused on gene-phenotype curation, should not be construed as an advocacy for particular genetic approaches or tools. The BGEO will allow other communities to build upon the initial efforts, modify or augment the data model, and curate the BGEO to suit their needs. "The thing that makes him do this is he's a performer," the actor said of Reeves. "He likes to perform. He likes to be the best. He's not

Trump and Ivanka were Melania's guests at Saturday night's celebrity-filled gala for the Make-A-Wish Foundation in Palm Beach. They were seated in the front row for the gala, along with Jared Kushner, Tiffany Trump, Eric Trump, and Melania's parents, Viktor and Amalija Knavs. AD The event featured a performance by Usher and a speech by real estate developer Donald Trump. The couple's presence at the event was viewed by some as an uncomfortable coincidence: On Saturday, the Washington Post's Michelle Boorstein tweeted that the Knavs' new neighbors in Trump-owned condominiums in the guard-gated Mar-a-Lago were also attending the festivities — and included the Melania, Donald Jr., Eric, Tiffany, and Ivanka, as well as the country singer Toby Keith and designer Vera Wang. AD "Ivanka and Donald Trump staying at Mar-a-Lago?! That's a real coincidence," The Post's David Fahrenthold tweeted. "Mar-a-Lago not only made Donald Trump president, it also made this country uninhabitable for the Knavs of New York City." Stacey Best, an Australian expatriate who lives in New York, replied: "I guess you can't count on having a politician who stays in a hotel! But don't rule out something crazy!" @DonCoffeySP @davidfarenthold, I guess you can't count on having a politician who stays in a hotel! Fahrenthold responded: “And during that time, he shut down Mar-a-Lago for the duration of his term, so no one could stay there.” AD Under the federal Ethics in Government Act, a senior employee of a federal agency cannot accept a gift greater than $350 in value from a “covered official.” AD Trump was reimbursed by the
